CAPT. WALLACE IS IN A HURRY

Returned From San Francisco and Threatened to Jump His Bond.

Captain Wallace, of the Sea King, returned from San Francisco on the Sierra yesterday, and so little was he satisfied with Honolulu conditions that he threatened to return to the same city on the Sonoma, after but a few hours in the city.

Captain Wallace was in a state of high dudgeon, when he called at the judiciary building yesterday afternoon. He is one of the sea captains who have been committed to await the action of the grand jury, on a charge of cruelty upon the high seas. To expedite matters, Acting United States District Attorney Dunne had some men sent to the court to try the hearing on information, when the defendant's attorneys attacked by demurrer, on the ground that the men should be indicted by a grand jury. Thereupon the informations were withdrawn, and the men compelled to await due process of law, and a new grand jury.

Wallace was released on $5,000 bail, but later it was reduced to $500, on the plea that he was compelled to go to San Francisco and he could not get sureties for the larger amount.

When he returned on the Sierra yesterday, Wallace's first move was to visit Mr. Dunne to find out about the time of the hearing. He was told that it would be held within two weeks, as the first week would be given over to the grand jury, whereat Mr. Wallace became very wrathful, and threatened to let the courts do as they pleased, as he intended to do the same thing. He said that he had been waiting for four months, at great loss of time and money, and now he intended to wait no longer. United States Attorney Dunne explained that the delay was through no fault of the government, but that it was impossible to take up his case any sooner. Then the district attorney launched into a tirade against his own attorney, and said that he would have been much better off if he had taken no legal advice. He said that he had paid out $250 for attorneys' fees, though he had received no benefit, while he had spent an additional $500 because of his arrest.

He finally got to the judiciary building, threatening to jump his bond and return to San Francisco on the Sonoma. Evidently, he was rather open in declaring his intentions of skipping out, for he had not left the building very long before his two bondsmen, James J. Harvey and Thomas G. Clean, appeared in hot haste, and requested that their bond be exonerated and the captain taken into custody. This was impossible to do except at an open session of court, and as Judge Estee had already adjourned for the day, no action could be taken yesterday.

It is a pretty safe prediction that an officer was watching for any attempt at departure upon Sonoma, and had Wallace made such a trial he would have been taken into custody immediately by his bondsmen. Evidently he thought better of his intention and abandoned the idea of flight, for he did not appear at the Sonoma up to the time she sailed. The bond under which Captain Wallace has his liberty is good until next Monday, at which time the October session of court begins, but the bondsmen may deliver him up sooner, by application to the court for a release from their bond.
